Why should you cite?

To show that you are:

- Being a responsible scholar/researcher by giving credit to other researchers/writers…
- Avoiding plagiarism
- Giving your reader the ability to track down the sources you have used
- Showing your reader that you have done proper research

The three most commonly used styles of citation in academic papers

MLA: Modern Language Association

MLA style: Commonly used in the liberal arts, cultural studies, and other humanities disciplines like:

- English, Foreign Languages, History, Philosophy, Sociology, Psychology, Religion (fields typically thought of as non-technical and non-scientific) .

A sample MLA paper:

- https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/mla_style/mla_formatting_and_style_guide/mla_sample_paper.html

MLA: In-text Referencing

In-Text citation with MLA

MLA style calls for two kinds of information to be included in in-text citations:

1. The author's last name
2. The page number for the reference

Example in-text citations, from fictional authors and sources:

While all flies provide sustenance, one obtains more “nutrition for the soul” from high-quality specimens (Frog 56).

Make sure the period goes after the parentheses!

You could also place part of the citation in the text as follows:

While all flies provide sustenance, Ribbet Frog argues that one obtains more “nutrition for the soul” from high-quality specimens (33).

CMS: The Chicago Manual of Style

The Chicago Manual of Style (CMS) is the preferred formatting and style guidelines used by the disciplines of history, philosophy, religion, and the arts.

A sample CMS paper:

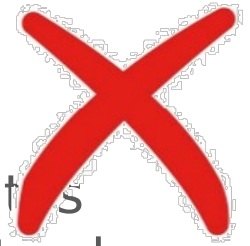

- https://library.menloschool.org/ld.php?content_id=59719708

APA: American Psychological Association

- This form of writing research papers is used mainly in the social and natural sciences, like:
  - psychology, anthropology, sociology, as well as education, business, health sciences and engineering.

Which one is more reader-friendly? Text 1:

Climate change is currently a heated debate, so it is important to understand what constitutes “climate change”. Stephan Lewandowsky and Lorraine Whitmarsh (2018, Climate coomunication for biologists: When a picture can tell a thousand words. PLoS Biology, 16(10), 218-225. https://doi.org/10.1371/journal.pbio.20006004) suggest that rising sea levels are one of the most reliable measures for recording changes to the climate on a global scale. The authors endorse that the focus of measurement should be distinct climates, such as glaciers, rather than seasonal changes as is often the case. What this means is that to understand climate change, it is important to separate what is actual climate change from the results of changing weather patterns.

Cinema has been an important part of Hong Kong culture for several decades. The films of Bruce Lee, Jacky Chan, Chow Yun Fat and many other performers are not only popular in the SAR; as Lu (2002) points out, locally-produced films have "long captured the enthusiasm and love of dedicated fans from all over the world" (p. 68). One of the most well-known forms of Hong Kong cinema is the martial arts film, which has undergone a number of changes in style and content over the past 40 years, ranging from straightforward action to kung fu horror (Riley, 2004). In order to understand the popularity of such films, it is useful to examine the place of kung fu in Hong Kong's sporting history.

Researchers have studied how people talk to themselves:

> Inner speech is a paradoxical phenomenon. It is an experience that is central to many people's everyday lives, and yet it presents considerable challenges to any effort to study it scientifically. Nevertheless, a wide range of methodologies and approaches have combined to shed light on the subjective experience of inner speech and its cognitive and neural underpinnings. Rules about dates:

Surname/Year Rule	Do NOT separate the surname and the year. They should always be written together. Robinson (2010) argues that...
Omitting the Year in Repeated Narrative Citations	If another citation from the same source is given in the same paragraph, write the year in the first citation; the date can be omitted in the subsequent narrative citations in the same paragraph. Give the year again when you refer to the same source in another paragraph. The year has to be included in all parenthetical citations. Robinson (2010) argues that... Robinson also mentions...
No date	Use (n.d.) meaning "no date"

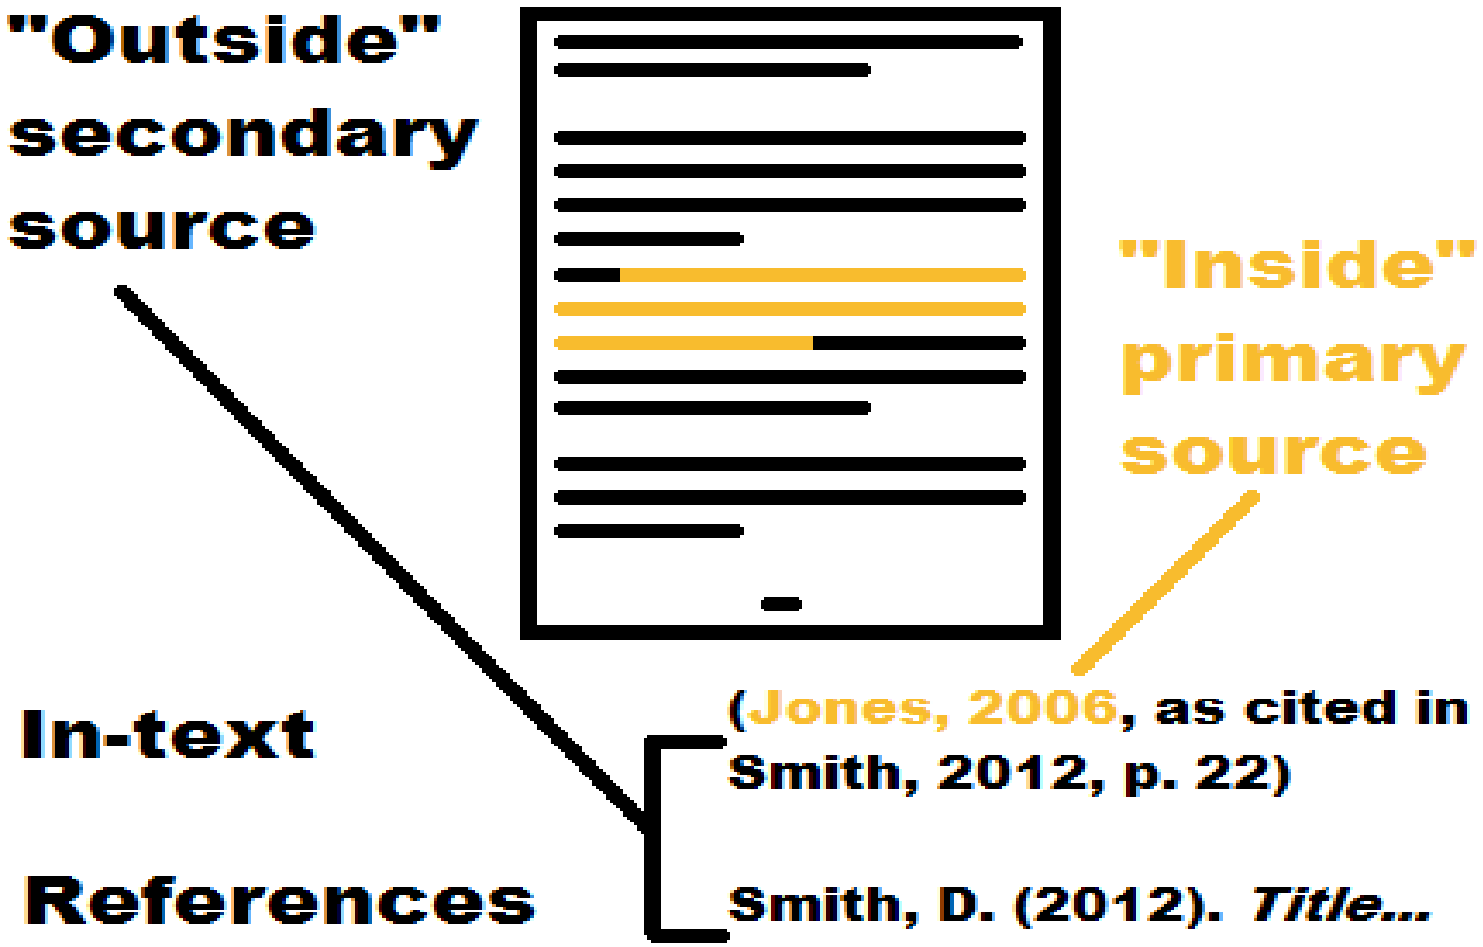

Secondary sources: Citing a source within a source («as cited in»): (p. 158)

- An indirect citation or secondary source is when the ideas of one author are published in another author's text but you have not read or accessed the original author's work.
- Identify the primary source and then write "as cited in" the secondary source that you used.
- If the year of publication is known for the primary source, also include it in the text.
- In the reference list, provide the details of the work in which you found the quotation or idea (i.e. the secondary source.

Find a secondary source on page 70.

Secondary sources: Citing a source within a source («as cited in»): (p. 158)

Where possible, you should try to obtain the original published work!

For example:

Say you read an article by Brown & Horowitz (2018) in which Truslow (2009) was cited and you want to use his (Truslow's) ideas. You are unable to read Truslow's work yourself.

So its in-text citation would look like:

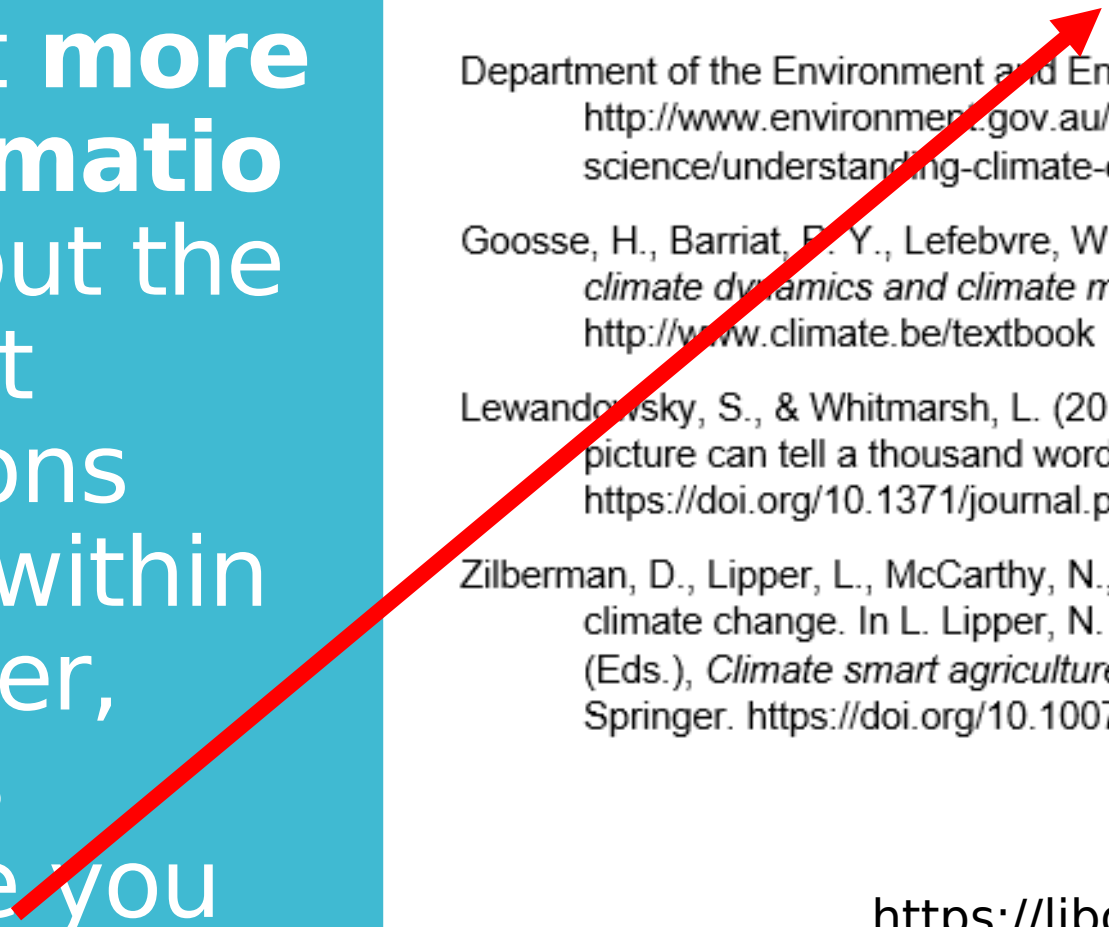

- According to Truslow (2009, as cited in Brown & Horowitz, 2018, p. 32), ~~the res~~ults confirmed that …
- The results (Truslow, 2009, as cited in Brown & Horowitz, 2018, p. 32) confirmed that…

If the publication year of the primary source is unknown, omit it from the in-text citation:

- Bennett (as cited in Stone, 2013, p. 176) defined … OR
- Research indicates … (Bennett, as cited in Stone, 2013, p. 176).

Print Pages (Newspapers) vs Digital Pages (Websites)

No Print? No Italics!

APA 7 separates online news into two categories:

- Newspapers with online sites (like Time, The New York Times or The Wall Street Journal). For these, the newspaper name gets italicized.
- News websites with no print paper (like CNN, BBC News, Bloomberg, or NPR). APA classifies these as standard webpages. For a standard webpage, the article title gets italicized, while the website name (CNN…) stays in plain text.

Online resources

Webpage on a website with an organizational group author	Name of the organization. (Year, Month Day). Title of work. URL	World Health Organization. (2021, March 4). Rotavirus vaccines made available for use in humanitarian crises. https://www.who.int/news/item/04-03-2021-rotavirus-vaccines-made-available-for-use-in-humanitarian-crises

The organization itself becomes the author.

rses Association. (n.d.). Nursing excellence. https://www.nursingworld.org/practice-policy/nursing-excellence/

Rule of Thumb!

- If the website is a Journal or Newspaper or Government Report or : Italicize the website/journal name. These are stand-alone works, not pieces inside a larger container.
- If the website is a Blog, Government Site, or General Webpage: Italicize the article/page title.

Youtube Videos (p. 163)

- The Rule: The official YouTube Channel Name is treated as the author, not the individual person speaking!
- Example:
- The School of Life. (2015, January 26). How to make an attractive city [Video]. YouTube. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Hy4QjmKzF1c
- In-Text Citations:
  - Parenthetical Citation: (The School of Life, 2015)
  - Narrative Citation: The School of Life (2015)
- NOTE: If you want quote a specific part of the video, you must replace the page number with a timestamp:
- Example:
- «All the most beautiful compact cities have squares» (The School of Life, 2015, 4:12).

Anthropic → Claude
Google → Gemini
Microsoft → Copilot

Citing a Specific AI Chat:

Writing Numbers: Words and Numerals

Use numerals for numbers that are followed by a precise unit of measurement.

- Examples:
- The samples measured 7 cm in diameter. (“cm” is a unit of measurement)

But: These three samples were subjected to further testing.

Use words for any number that is used to start a sentence, with the exception of years.

- Examples:
- Three million plastic bottles are produced every day.
- Nineteenth-century novels often feature complicated plot lines.
- But:* 2008 saw record olive crops throughout the Mediterranean.

Writing Numbers: Words and Numerals

Writing percentages

With percentages, the standard is to use numerals and "%" (not "percent").

- Example:
- According to the report, 45% of the workforce is employed in the service sector. Only 6% currently work in agriculture.

The main exception is if you are using a percentage to begin a sentence. In this case, use words to express the entire percentage.

- Example:
- Thirteen percent of the patients reported that their symptoms improved after taking the experimental drug.
